

Therese Miclot

Director, Facilitation Excellence

Therese Miclot is the Director of Proteus' Facilitation Excellence area. She works with organizations to improve the impact and quality of facilitated experiences.

She's an expert at catalyzing learning, deepening conversations, and getting better results when working with groups.

She's worked with all levels of leadership, from senior executives to new people managers, in a variety of areas—from skill-based leadership development to change management. She has consulted to a number of corporations including Facebook, New York Stock Exchange, Madison Square Garden, Citi, Chanel, Grant Thornton, Rockwell Automation, Scotiabank, Discovery Communications, and McDonald's.

Therese is sought after as a trainer-of-trainers and has a passion for developing facilitation capability in others. She delivers—and teaches others to deliver—dynamic, interactive, world-class learning experiences. Her ability to build facilitation skills is grounded in a practical approach which results in increased capability, confidence, and improved results in any situation where facilitation matters.

She's coached hundreds of managers to help them become better at leading and facilitating. Therese is also a TRACOM Master Certified SOCIAL STYLE instructor.

With a Masters degree in Industrial/Organizational Psychology, she brings a disciplined approach to training delivery, while finding joy in creating practical and simple solutions to clients' needs.
